BIOGRAPH

ESSANAY

AT JONES' FERRY Edison

A story of the Maine lumber region. This dramatic tale is played in beautiful scenery and unusual surroundings. It shows the lumberman's life, a girl's fall into the water, floating through the water on a log and her heroic rescue.

The DARK ROMANCE of a TOBACCO CAN Essanay

A comedy with some color. An original comedy photoplay with a laugh in every foot.

The OLD CONFECTIONER'S MISTAKE Biograph

A case of toothache that almost caused a tragedy.

NEVER BELIEVE IN SIGNS Essanay

A short, snappy comic. The little laundress's sign was misleading but it certainly drew the business.

FURTHER WORK ON FEDERAL BUILDING

Matters between Department and Contractor will soon be Adjusted and Work will be Resumed and Hurried along.

Work on the new federal building, delayed for several weeks on account of grade matters is expected to be renewed in the near future and from that time will go straight ahead barring any unforeseen developments. The department at Washington has asked the contractor, A. B. Stennard, for estimates on several changes made necessary on account of the new grade and, as soon as these are approved, it is expected that operations on the site will be commenced and the place be kept active without interruption.

The new grade reached as a compromise between council and the inspector, George M. Deatrick, will mean a change of six inches in the footings, the granite work about the building, and the brick walls. On a building the size of the federal structure this amounts to quite an item. On account of the effort which will be put forth to have the building especially handsome and beautiful—more of a monument than a business structure—the government and the contractor will have the same elevation above the pavement line as originally intended and the approach to the building will be as beautiful as first planned.

The delay, unfortunate as it has been, was practically a necessity on the part of council as the Pratt survey, if followed at the government property, would not have permitted proper drainage with the streets at their present elevation. As a result council had nothing to do but make a change or reconstruct the streets and it is doubtful if this would have been as satisfactory as the present arrangement.

The contractor had hoped to have the building well under way before cold weather and it is a great disappointment to Mr. Stennard as well as to Mr. Fantini, the local superintendent, and all others interested in the progress of the building that the delay has occurred.

GLIDDENITES REACH ROANOKE

In a heavy driving rain, the worst that has visited that section in years, the Glidden tourists commenced to arrive in Roanoke, Va., Tuesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock and by 6 o'clock all of the contestants had checked in at the headquarters.

Chief of Police Dovel, of Harrisonburg will receive $39.60 from the chief in Staunton through the mail. Sheriff Carickhoff held up half a dozen Glidden automobile tourists for violating the Harrisonburg speed limit law. The "joy riders" begged the officer to let them proceed, saying they would leave the cash in Staunton. When they arrived in Staunton the chief was waiting for them. Sheriff Carickhoff stood on a street corner and threatened to shoot holes in the tires of some of the machines if the drivers did not put a crimp in their speed.

TWO LANDMARKS ARE TAKEN AWAY

Old Sun Dial at Corner of Carlisle Street and Square is Removed. Fell Big Tree in Front of Hotel Gettysburg.

The passing of two old Gettysburg landmarks has accompanied the building of the concrete curbs and pavements about the Square, one of them, the old granite sundial at the Lestz store corner, having been taken out last week and the other, the big tree in front of Hotel Gettysburg falling this afternoon. The grade of the new pavement is about four inches below the present brick sidewalk, necessitating cutting off several of the main roots before the concrete could be laid. The felling of the tree, as was feared, was practically a necessity for it was not thought that the other roots would be sufficient to keep it alive.

Many of the older residents of the town remember the time when the sundial was in use but it has passed from any practical benefit for many years, the pin casting the shadow long since having been removed. The tree has stood in front of Hotel Gettysburg for several generations and many there are who were sorry to see it fall.

The new pavement in the northwest corner of the Square will extend three feet beyond the present pavement line at the Weaver store corner and will gradually approach the present line until the Hotel Gettysburg corner where it will be slightly within the present line. This would place the smaller trees about five or six feet from the curb and three of them will fall as a result. The old curb line, it is said, was not symmetrical according to present specifications and the change will accordingly be made. It will be a welcome one for traffic frequently becomes congested at the corner of the Square and York street and the additional space can be well utilized.

Work at tearing up the old pavement was started this morning and in a day or two Charles E. Lady will start the work of putting down the concrete.

A dance was given at college Tuesday evening in the Recitation Hall under the management of the college orchestra. Brumbaugh, Misses Margaret Coover, Louise and Katharine Duncan, Mary Graff, Elizabeth Hersh, Helen Kendelhart, Frances McClean, Viola Miller, Kathleen Power, Stella Raffensperger, Frances Sheely, Marian Sheely, Jeanne Sieber, Rachael Skelly, Mary Slaybaugh, Verna Swartz, Amy Swope, Bernadette Thomas, Elizabeth Van-Cleve, Nellie Weaver, Goldie Widder.

REED CASE TO SUPREME COURT

Mont Alto Murder Case Goes to Higher Court. William Reed May not Hang and if he Does it will not be for Many Months.

William Reed, the convicted Mont Alto murderer may never be executed but if he is it will not be for six months and maybe a year.

The trial of Reed for the murder of Sarah Hurley-Mathua on May 9th, 1911, has already cost the county of Franklin about $1,000 and the expense will be increased by the cost of an appeal to the Supreme Court. The lawyers for the defence had three weeks to file the necessary papers and inside that time Governor Tener set no date for the hanging. Now that an appeal is ready to file it acts as a supersedeas and stays the execution pending the disposition of the appeal.

The Act of June 30, 1911, provided that an appeal to the Supreme Court made in the case of a murder where counsel had been appointed by the Court shall have the expenses of the appeal, paper book, etc., paid by the County Treasurer out of the funds of the county.

Counsel for Reed, Messrs. J. W. Hoke and Irvin C. Elder have completed their papers in the appeal and allege just about the same twenty reasons as were given in their motion for a new trial, most of them being alleged errors in the Judge's charge.

HOW "EDDIE" WAS PICKED

One story of the way "Eddie" Plank was selected to pitch Monday's baseball game is told by the McSherrystown correspondent of the Hanover Record-Herald who says: F. V. Topper, F. X. Weaver and "Jack" Bollinger, of this place, left town Sunday evening for Philadelphia. The party was equipped with tickets for the game between the Giants and the Athletics, scheduled to be played on Monday and on their arrival registered at the Hotel Wilson. "Capt Jack" was joined by Burgess "Allie" Holtzworth, of Gettysburg, and together they sought out Connie Mack, so 'tis rumored, and held a consultation to decide upon the choice to do the hurling in the game. They naturally supported "Eddie" Plank, who was born near Gettysburg, and schooled in baseball at McSherrystown, and their choice was the Adams county boy, who, as is well known, pitched one of the best games of his career. The members of the party were given private seats in a box and when "Eddie" strode into the pitcher's box at the opening of the hostilities their joy knew no bounds. Accompanying the party, which included David Newcomer, Jr., of Hanover, and several others from this section, was the father of "Eddie" Plank, who sat between "Jack" and "Allie."

The Harrisburg Telegraph says:

"Plank is not an old man and there are many who believe he is good for at least two more seasons. He is only 26 years old, but according to records of former pitchers, now on the retired list, a twirler should quit when he thinks he has had enough, and that is what Eddie Plank has been thinking about for some time.

"Plank will not alone decide his future course. Connie Mack will have a say. The Gettysburg boy may be compelled to sign up another season. If Mack thinks Plank will continue to make good he will not lose any time in offering the pitcher a new contract, as this year's winds up a five year contract. Plank has been playing base ball for eleven years, starting with Gettysburg College."

CHICKEN THIEVES WEAR MASKS

Two chicken thieves broke into the chicken house of Merchant C. S. Martin, Charman, Sunday night, about 9 o'clock, and succeeded in getting away with twenty fowls. About 9 o'clock Mr. Martin heard his chickens making an unusual amount of noise and he, thinking that chicken thieves were around, went out to his chicken house, armed with a revolver. When he neared the chicken house he could see the chicken thieves, who had a lantern with them, in the act of catching the fowls and putting them in a bag. Mr. Martin discharged his revolver. The bullet entered the chicken house, after which he ran to the house and secured his shot gun. When he returned to the scene, he pursued the two thieves chasing them across the road into the mountains. Mr. Martin fired several shots but without effect. The two thieves wore masks and it was impossible for Mr. Martin to distinguish them.

TURKEYS PLENTIFUL

Says the Harrisburg Telegraph: If turkeys are as plentiful everywhere as they are along the state road between Harrisburg and Gettysburg, Thanksgiving dinners should be more numerous this year. Almost every field in which there had been grain harvested large flocks of turkeys were seen, and according to the farmers, they have not yet been bought up and will not be sold except in the markets. One farmer put it this way: "I have not raised many turkeys, but what I have will be sold at a reasonable price. I expect to get more for my trouble than if I had sold them weeks ago to commission dealers. Some of my neighbors are of the same opinion. Turkeys are harder to raise than other fowls and cost a little more, but farmers in this section lost out last year in selling their turkeys ahead of time and they are not going to be fooled again."

SAYS HUSBAND WAS POISONED ON TRAIN

Woman Sues Pennsy For $100,000 Damages.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Alleging that her husband, Charles Strawder Batt, a wealthy resident of Tarrytown, who died from the effects of eating something poisonous on a dinner of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, Mrs. Dorothy R. Batt has brought two actions against the railroad company for $100,000 each in the supreme court of Westchester county.

Mrs. Batt sets forth in the complaint that her husband on June 16, 1910, was a passenger on the Pennsylvania train from Washington to New York city, and that while passing through the state of Delaware he had dinner in the dining car. PRESIDENT IN PICTURE LAND

Train Passes Through Miles of Lemon and Orange Orchards.

LONGEST JUMP OF TRIP

To Travel From Los Angeles to Butte, Mont., Without a Scheduled Stop. Watched Bathing at Long Beach.

San Bernardino, Cal., Oct. 18.—President Taft passed through the picture book land of Southern California. He is taking the longest jump of his 13,000-mile trip, from Los Angeles, Cal., to Butte, Mont., a distance of 1215 miles.

There are no scheduled stops for this trip, but many small towns along the way have telegraphed the president to stop with them for a few minutes, and he has consented to do so.

The last place which the president visited before leaving Los Angeles was Long Beach, where he walked about the Hotel Plaza and watched the bathers fight the surf of the Pacific and loll about the warm sand of the beach in the sun. It was uncomfortably warm and the president sought the shade where the cool sea breezes might reach him. He tarried there long enough for a light luncheon and then boarded his train for Montana. The first stage of the long jump was through the orange and lemon land of the southern valley. Stops were made at four or five towns, and the president spoke to the crowds from the platform of his car.

The heat increased as the journey progressed inland. The people at the stations were dressed mostly in white and they buried his platform in roses several times. After the trip had run for miles and miles through orchards of lemon and orange trees the Taft special arrived at Pomona, Cal., and there a delegation of the local body of Elks was waiting for the president with a huge basket of lemons, decorated with a plea for the protection of the citrus fruit trade. The placard on the basket read:

"To the president—Greeting: We come from Pomona's broad, sunny vale with greetings from thousands; your health, sir, all hail. We trust we will merit your careful inspection; we're good for a squeeze, but we need your protection."

The president was greeted by amazingly big crowds for the size of the towns. Though the visits were short and rather hastily arranged, considerable preparation had been made at every town for the president's reception, and everywhere there were flowers, big baskets of roses, flowers arranged in designs and down on to little posesys handed to the president from the hot hands of youngsters lifted up to the platform by their parents.

At Riverside there was almost an accident, for a limb of a tree broke from its excessive weight of small boys, and a dozen of them came sailing down out of the leaves like a parcel of monkeys.

"Hello, there," called out the president as he caught sight of them; "any one hurt over there?" But the youngsters broke out in reassuring laughter and shouts at his notice of them.

At San Bernardino the president left his train and went for a short ride about the town. This is the last stop before entering the pass through the mountains, and beyond lies the desert.

SCORNFUL; MURDERS WOMAN

Shoots Cousin's Wife and Tries Suicide When She Rejects Him.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—After shooting his cousin's wife in the head and killing her, Gregorio Vinci, twenty-four years old, of Thirteenth and Ellsworth streets, turned the revolver on himself and fired a bullet through his left temple. He is dying in the Pennsylvania hospital.

The police say that Vinci has been forcing his attentions on his cousin's wife, Mrs. Nicholas Vinci, for some time, and that she had repulsed him. Mrs. Vinci was working in the kitchen of her home and Gregorio again tried to make love to her.

When the woman ordered him from the house the man whipped out a revolver and threatened her life. Mrs. Vinci bravely repeated her order, whereupon Vinci fired at her. He was but a few feet away and the bullet entered her head behind the left ear. Without a cry she fell to the floor.

Neighbors came rushing to the back gate, but not before Vinci had placed the revolver to his head and fired a shot into his left temple. When the police broke into the house they found the man and woman lying side by side on the kitchen floor.

Mrs. Vinci was dead, and from all indications death had been instantaneous. The man still lived. The physicians say Vinci cannot live.

HELPLESS MOTHER SEES BABY EAT POISON

Child Swallows Medicine and Dies in Agony.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—Lying in bed helpless with paralysis in her home at 1326 North Spangler street, the mother of Hazel C. Griffith, aged fifteen months, made a feeble effort to save the life of the little one as the latter reached to a chair near the side of the mother's bed and secured several strychnine tablets, which the child swallowed.

Mrs. Griffith tried in vain to get from her bed, and her feeble cries for help attracted the attention of her husband, who arrived a short time later and carried the child to the office of Dr. L. M. Allen, but the little one breathed its last in its father's arms.

Hazel was asleep in the room when the father went out, but later the little girl awoke and toddled to the chair where the deadly tablets were. Mrs. Griffith saw the child's danger and, despite her condition, used every effort to raise her hand and prevent her daughter from securing the tablets.

She screamed for help, but the child got several of the deadly pellets from the chair and put them in her mouth and fell helpless to the floor. Still shouting for help, Mrs. Griffith attracted the attention of her husband, who had returned. He lifted the little girl in his arms and carried her to the residence of Dr. Allen, where she died. Mrs. Griffith is said to be in a serious condition as the result of the shock.

A FAMOUS LAWSUIT

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

The town of Bidwell, up in the New England hills, was a town of peace. It had been founded just forty years when its first real sensation came. One day Deacon Goodhue borrowed Deacon Hardman's garden hoe, and after using it a few minutes he broke it off at the shank. While he contended that it was old and rusty and ready to break, he offered to buy a new one to replace it. Much to his surprise, he was allowed to do so, and he went home to say to his wife: "Martha, I've known Deacon Hardman for thirty years and have just found him out. He's a human hog, and if he ever goes to heaven I want to go somewhere else."

For two weeks after that the two deacons nodded coldly to each other whenever they met, and it gradually became known to Bidwell that their relations were strained. Then one morning Deacon Goodhue set out to drive five hogs over to the weighing scales. He had to pass the other deacon's house, and as he came along the gate was open, and all the hogs made a rush for it. He was trying to drive them out of Deacon Hardman's yard when the latter came out and said:

"By gum, Deacon Goodhue, but this is goin' too far—too far! You opened that gate and driv' your hogs in on me a-purpose!"

"I never did, and you know I didn't," retorted Deacon Goodhue as he paused in his running.

"Yes, you did!"

"No, I didn't!"

"Do you call me a liar?"

"Yes, if you call me one."

"Take it back or I'll mop the ground with you!"

"Come out here and I'll make you see stars!"

Then and there the deacons clinched and rolled on the ground together, and they were choking each other and breathing hard when Moses Schemerhorn came along and separated them. Deacon Hardman went straight to Justice Somerfield and swore out a warrant for assault and battery.

Both men had their friends, and the public was divided. The only person who had witnessed the fracas was Deacon Hardman's wife, but there were other witnesses sworn.

Old Mrs. Taylor swore that she had always suspected Deacon Goodhue to be a man of violent temper and that he only needed to be kicked to become a murderer. Moses Hunt was a mile away that morning looking for his cow, but he swore that Deacon Hardman was the sort of man to lose his temper and do awful things if he found a strange hog rooting up his hollyhocks. Abner Crossman, who had known both parties for thirteen years, swore that he had known Deacon Goodhue to fall off a haystack, get mired in a swamp and fight bumblebees for half an hour without losing the smile on his face, and he could not believe that he had begun this fuss. Opposed to him was Trueheart Johnson, who said he had seen Deacon Hardman kicked head over heels by a cow, run over by a hog and knocked down by a ram and that he preserved a humble spirit throughout and even asked the cow to forgive him if he had hurt her feelings.

Mrs. Hardman's testimony was that she was washing the dishes after breakfast when she heard her husband give a grunt and rush from the house. She followed him to the door and heard and saw all that subsequently passed, though in such a nervous state that she could not be sure of anything. She felt almost sure that Deacon Goodhue said "by gum" and "devil" and "old crank," but she wouldn't be positive of it. She was almost as sure that her husband started to sing a hymn and made some Scriptural quotation, but she might have been mistaken. She was not sure who grabbed the other first, but she could swear on the living Bible that they had trodden all the mudcrusts into the earth and broken down most of her tiger lilies.

It took two days to try the case, and meanwhile all business was suspended, including the sawmill. There was no jury, and when almost everybody in town had sworn on one side or the other Justice Somerfield put on his most dignified look and said:

"This case seems to go back to the hoe and to Deacon Goodhue's garden. Was there any need of the deacon working in his garden that day? What had become of his own hoe? Was the borrowed hoe rusty in the shank or was it not?"

"Then there were the hogs. Any man who had ever set out to drive one hog along the road, to say nothing about five, knew that the animal wouldn't go straight for a rod at a time. He wouldn't be a hog to pass an open gate without making a rush for the opening. As to whether the lie was actually given and who gave it first is a matter of doubt. The same is true as to who grabbed first, but there can be no possible doubt that many cucumbers and tiger lilies were destroyed and that Deacon Hardman emerged from the conflict with a skinned nose. Taken full and by and back and forth, it was about an even thing. The costs will be divided between them, business resumed at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning, and if either has any root beer in the cellar he will be expected to treat the other and both make up and let hoes and hogs go to grass forever more!"

A Curious Illusion.

People declare that they have seen a field of grass gradually change color during a shower of rain, thousands of mushrooms springing up before their eyes. This is an optical illusion caused by the rain beating down the grass. The mushrooms do not really spring up during a single shower of rain. They are there already, but hidden by the grass, and when the rain beats down the grass it exposes the hidden mushrooms.—London Mail.

THE ASTOR WAY.

A Lesson in Finance That William B. Taught His Bookkeeper.

The real estate dealer was reminding "Some years ago," he said, "William B. Astor said one day to his head bookkeeper, 'I wish you to write out those 1,200 leases—indicating the documents—preparatory to releasing the various properties for which they will be drawn and reduce each rental price 25 per cent for the ensuing year.' The head bookkeeper, astonished, ventured to protest. 'There has been no complaint, Mr. Astor,' he said, 'from any tenant as to the amount of rent charged. All are satisfied to pay present prices.'"

"This is a matter of future business," the financier replied, "as well as present. Times are not especially good just now, and I do not think they will improve this year. I am not, however, making this reduction as a philanthropic movement. It will be a good business investment for me. I want all of my tenants, if possible. Indications are that business conditions during the coming year will force many persons to move into cheaper houses and flats than they have been occupying for some time. I do not wish my tenants to move. I know them and am familiar with their ways. I am acquainted with their needs, demands and methods of paying their rents. If they should move I should have to try to replace them with new tenants, whose desirability I have not tested. Besides, I should have to spend large sums in repainting, painting and arranging these various properties to suit the new tenants. By reducing rents I shall have a delighted lot of tenants, who would not leave me if they could. Furthermore, I will make it impossible for them to find as good places elsewhere for the money. Naturally, having had their rents reduced, they will not ask for any repairs that can possibly be avoided, and I shall save some money in that direction, over previous years. Besides, I shall know the exact amount of reduction and shall be able to estimate my resources accordingly. If, on the contrary, I let many of my tenants move out the amount of my losses would be uncertain. You will find, if you compare my rentals at the end of the year with those of similar properties owned by other persons who make no reductions, that mine is a profitable plan. When times improve we can release at advanced figures, and undoubtedly to the same tenants."

"The bookkeeper learned a lesson in finance, the leases were drawn accordingly, and Astor did not lose a tenant."—New York Press.

"Hard lines! But how did he come to do it?"

"Well, you see," said the sympathetic sub, "six weeks ago he got a fine answer to a riddle—one's chauffeur and the other's a fur show—and he's never been able to sleep since, trying to find the conundrum it would make a good answer to."—London Express.

S. McEicholtz FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

The office of Commissioner is the one office within the gift of the county that should most deeply interest the taxpayer. The County Commissioner can more than any other man, squander the resources of the county, or by careful and economical administration of the office, save the county thousands of dollars annually. It goes then without saying that only men of known business ability, utmost integrity and thorough honesty should be elected to the office. To this latter class belongs our candidate, S. McEicholtz, of Menallen Twp., a staunch and loyal Democrat. Starting but a few years ago upon borrowed capital, he has, by the exercise of keen business judgment, honesty in dealing and strict economy, risen to an enviable financial position in his community. None can say aught against him. Even those, who from party reasons are working hardest to defeat him, admit there is nothing against either his fitness for the office or his character as a man. This is the candidate we are presenting to you Mr. Voter. Vote for him.

NANKING'S FALL IS IMMINENT

U. S. Consul Wires American Legation For Gunboat.

THE GERMANS FIGHT MOB

Chinese Government Moves Quickly to Recapture Wu-Chang and Han-Yang From Revolutionists.

Peking, Oct. 18.—The acting American consul at Nanking, Alvin W. Gilbert, telegraphed the American legation here that the fall of Nanking was imminent. He asks that a gunboat be sent there.

Kai-Fung, the capital of Ho-Nan province, is reported to have fallen before the revolutionists.

The foreign board issued a communication to the legations and press, saying:

"Admiral Sah Chen Ping arrived at Hankow with eight ships of war, and troops from the north and east are arriving at Hankow. It is expected that the recapture of Han-Yang and Wu Chang will be a matter of only a few days."

"Dispatches from Nanking, Chang-Sha, Canton, Anking, Mukden, Kai-Fong, Tientsin and Poochow state that everything is quiet and that there is no fear of any disturbances."

The information of the legations indicates that only the first statement of the official communication is strictly accurate. The minister of war, General Yin-Tchang, is at Changteh-Shan, the home of Yuan Shi Kai, with whom he is in conference. Yuan Shi Kai, according to official announcement, has accepted the post of viceroy of Hu-Peh and Han-Nan provinces and responsibility for restoring order in those sections. A decision as to Yuan's next move, however, has not been reached.

Russian troops have been ordered to move against the Hungtutze-bands in North Manchuria. Recently the Russians have reported frequently that these robbers were becoming bolder and better organized. A force of the old regime troops was brought in from Tung-Chow Chi to reinforce the depleted garrison at the capital.

As a result of the reports that the rebels are massacring Manchus, the local Manchus are adopting the Chinese dress. One paper is publishing the revolutionist proclamations.

Germans Fight Chinese in Hankow.

Berlin, Oct. 18.—Advices received at the foreign office from Hankow report that a German force of bluejackets, reinforced by German local residents, have been landed at Hankow and are now engaged in fighting in the streets with a Chinese mob.

The official report states that detachments were landed from the cruiser Leipzig and the gunboats Tiger and Vaterland. Members of the German colony volunteered to support the marines.

The admiralty has no further details regarding the fighting at Hankow, but understands that the Germans are co-operating in the international landing corps movement commanded by the Japanese naval captain.

The Recipe.

"Your novel is pretty good," said the publisher to Scribley. "But, after all, it needs just a little more thrill. Can't you put something stirring in it?" "Why, I might," said Scribley, "though just how to stir things up I don't know."

"Well," smiled the publisher, "suppose you try just a little more spooning. Nothing like a good spoon for stirring, you know."—Harper's.

Prosecutor Who Pleads Case Against McNamara.

MAY GET McNAMARA JURY BY DEC. 1

Quizzing of Talesman Simplified by Barring Nelson.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 18.—Speedy completion of the jury—that is, within a month or a little more—was the outlook when the trial of James B. McNamara, accused of murder as a result of the blowing up of the Times building, was resumed here.

Estimates that the jury would remain until Dec. 15, or perhaps until Christmas, were scaled down to Thanksgiving or Dec. 1, and predictions that the trial would not end before May 1 were abbreviated correspondingly.

The examination of Z. T. Nelson, the first talesman, who was barred from the jury when the prosecution withdrew its objection to the challenge for bias by the defense, has cleared the atmosphere by defining many issues involved.

Among the points made certain by Nelson's examination are these: Any talesman who believes that the Times building was blown up by gas believes McNamara innocent, in the opinion of the defense. This position was taken by Clarence S. Darrow, chief of counsel for the defense, and it is noted by counsel for the state for future use, in the belief that it can be made serviceable in examination of talesmen whom the state believes to be undesirable.

The defense may offer an alibi for McNamara or may rest solely upon the gas explosion theory in support of which it has gone even to Europe for expert evidence.

"Maybe we can prove an alibi; maybe we can't; maybe we shall not try to prove one," was Mr. Darrow's declaration in the court on this point, but he insisted on his position regarding the cause of the explosion.

$5000 Reward For Dynamiters.

Santa Barbara, Cal., Oct. 18.—E. E. The men escaped after a revolver battle with the watchman.

Three Killed in Feud.

Columbus, O., Oct. 18.—Special dispatches received here say that Troy and Elias Hatfield, two of the Hatfield family of feudists, living near Fayetteville, W. Tennis Players Have Their Foibles.

The tennis players, like all other classes of sportsmen, have their foibles, their strong and weak spots and some individual characteristics. One man may have a terrific service, while another may be endowed with a fearfully strong backhand, and still another with a terrible forehand, and on the other points there may be a string good at passing, court covering, volleying, baseline, driving and overhead smashes. Nearly every player in the front rank today shows some methods peculiarly his own.

Athletics Defeat Giants, 3 to 2, in 11-Inning Game.

BAKER'S HOME RUN TIES

Mack's Third Baseman Handed the Great "Matty" a Jolt Similar to Marquard's—Timely Hitting Won.

World's Series Percentages.

Won. Lost. P. C.

Athletics..... 2 1 .667

New York..... 1 2 .333

New York, Oct. 18.—For the first time on record the Philadelphia Athletics solved the pitching of Christy Mathewson and beat him at the Polo grounds, although it required eleven innings to accomplish the feat. The score was 3 to 2, the Giants making only three hits off Jack Coombs and scoring a run in the last inning.

They hung up a tally in the third inning and held this advantage until the ninth inning, when Frank Baker, who won Monday's game with a home run, drove one of Matty's slants far into the right wing of the grand stand for the circuit. This four-bagger tied the score and prompted the wildest kind of excitement.

The Giants partially crumbled under the heavy cannonading of the Athletics in the eleventh, who pounded Matty for three hits, which, with errors by Merkle and Herzog, netted two runs, just enough to win, for in the last half Herzog made up for several bungling plays by lining out a two-bagger, after which he reached the plate on a fumble by Collins.

Mathewson was found for nine hits, but he was batted much harder than the score indicates. He received magnificent support from Meyers, Doyle and Murray, who helped him out of numerous tight places. Coombs used terrific speed and pitched with wonderful confidence. Meyers and Mathewson hit him safely in the third inning, after which the Giants were helpless until Herzog cracked out his double in the final round.

The game was exciting and filled with sensational incidents. Numerous close decisions worked up the players and the crowd, yet the rulings all were eminently fair.

The dirtiest piece of world's series ball ever displayed was shown in the tenth inning by Fred Snodgrass, of the Giants. He again stepped into a pitched ball, but Umpire Brennan refused to allow him to have the bat and made him continue at the plate. He drew a pass, and was sacrificed, according to second by "Red" Murray. He tried to steal third on Lapp and Lapp put the ball into Baker's hands ten feet ahead of Snodgrass.

Snodgrass then, seeing he was trapped, threw his spikes directly into Baker and ripped loose his trousers. He spiked Baker here on Saturday, and when he started to the Giants' bench he was roundly booed.

The champions won the game in the eleventh inning. Oldring had grounded out, but Coombs singled. Baker came to the plate and singled. Then Herzog fumbled Murphy's grounder and Collins threw himself over the plate. Davis punched a single to right and Baker flashed home, but Murphy was caught at third. Murphy to Herzog. Davis died stealing.

Having beaten Mathewson, the Athletics express confidence in their ability to win the series, for they will use Bender in Philadelphia today, while the Giants probably will send Marquard to the mound in a desperate attempt to stem the tide.

In spite of the cold and threatening weather the attendance almost equalled that of Saturday. The turnstile count showed that 37,216 persons had passed through the gates. The gross receipts amounted to $75,593. The players' share was $40,820.22. Each club owner received $13,666.74. The commission's 10 per cent share was $7,559.30. For the three games the total attendance was 101,783 paid admissions. The gross receipts, $195,914.50, the players' share, $105,793.83. Each club owners' share, $35,264.61, and the national commission's share is $19,601.45. The score:

A Guaranteed Efficient Automobile $350

The Liberty-Brush

Your Hope of Owning a Motor Car May Now Come True

HERE is a real automobile selling at a price which Everyman can afford. It is a car which constitutes a declaration of independence for every family, for business men, for companies. It finally frees the horse.

The $350 Liberty-Brush is the result of long experience in building motor cars of this type, coupled with the ability of a great corporation to purchase materials in large quantities and to manufacture in prodigious numbers. It is marking epochs in the automobile industry and in transportation annals, for it is the response of a standard manufacturer to the demand for a motor car that any man can buy and maintain.

The new Liberty-Brush car means for you:

Freedom from crowded street cars and the discomforts and delays of street car travel. Freedom from the necessity of catching trains or waiting for connections—a freedom from commuting.

Freedom from failure to keep appointments, loss of time in traveling from one customer to another and consequent loss of money.

Freedom from the horse. It lessens time and distance, it increases the pleasure and health of your family and is a rest after a day of hard work.

Everybody has wanted an automobile, and has waited for the time when one would be within the reach of moderate incomes. The Liberty-Brush fills this desire. Not only is its initial cost small, but also the maintenance costs are little—cent a mile for two passengers, and that is cheaper than a horse. Beyond this there is no comparison.

The Liberty-Brush is built along standard lines, and with a long-stroke vertical motor of 10-horsepower. Its other features are tires equally up-to-date, as you can readily see upon inspection. It is built by the United States Motor Company—the largest makers of high-grade motor cars in the world, and is made possible by the willingness of the manufacturers to take a ridiculously small profit. Thus thousands of people who otherwise plod along with horses will fly through the country with their own cars.

The Liberty-Brush is the car for Salesmen, Solicitors, Canvasers, Collectors, R. F. D. Carriers, Physicians and everyone who must move quickly from place to place. Mercantile concerns will see in this car an opportunity to widen the territory and increase the earnings of their representatives. We represent the Liberty-Brush and invite everybody to come and see this wonderful car for $350. Ask us questions about its construction, about its performance, about its uses. Take a ride in it and let us explain to you how the United States Motor Company cares for its cars wherever they are. If you cannot come to us, let us come to you—no matter how far, the Liberty-Brush will go anywhere and in amazingly short time.

Now that you've seen

the big, powerful, stylish Maxwell Specials
—the most talked of cars in this year's

Glidden Tour

We want you to make a careful examination of this remarkable car—1912's undisputed leader—and permit us to demonstrate its remarkable qualities to you.

You'll agree that the Maxwell Special is a beauty in design and style.

We want you to know its superiority point by point.

We want you to appreciate the multitude of little refinements that are provided in it, and mean so much in comfort and convenience.

We want you to understand its constructive features.

We want you to know about its oiling system—the simplest and most effective in use—and the accessibility of its parts. No need to crawl beneath the Maxwell Special to adjust some refractory part.

Even to the combination lamp and license bracket on the rear fender and the lug on the rear axle for jacking up the car and the countersunk, theft-proof locked, extra tire case holder, every possible detail of refinement has been incorporated in this model.

No car sold anywhere within $500 of its price equals the Maxwell Special.

36-horsepower is the same power you will find in the best $1800 cars. It means more power than you will probably ever need. But it's there in reserve.

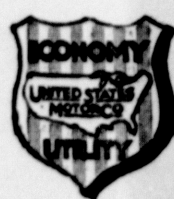

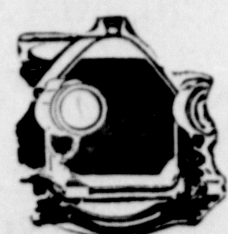

The remarkable price of the Maxwell Special—$1280—is the result of the great purchasing, manufacturing and selling economies of the United States Motor Company.

When you come around to see the Maxwell Special, we want to show you the other 1912 Maxwell models. The Maxwell Mascotte, a real "Family Car," and sold at $980. The stylish Maxwell Mercury, a test-proven mile-a-minute roadster at $1150. The famous Maxwell Messenger, peer of all utility runabouts, at $600. All examples of unequalled Maxwell values.

A HARMLESS WAY

TO DARKEN THE HAIR

A Little Sage and Sulphur
Makes Gray Hair Vanish—A Remedy for All Hair
Troubles.

Who does not know the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company of New York put up an ideal remedy of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If you have dandruff, or if your hair is thin or turning gray, get a bottle of this remedy from your druggist today, and see what it will do for you.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. People's Drug Store, Special Agent for Gettysburg.
